VOL. XXXII. UKIAH, MENDOCINO CO., CAL.: FRIDAY, JULY 5, 1907. 2

G. A. STURTEVANT APPOINTED JUDGE

George A Sturtevant has been appointed superior judge by Governor Gillett to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Hosmer. Judge Sturtevant is a Mendocino boy and naturally the residents of this county feel proud of the advancement he has made. He served Mendocino county faithfully in the assembly and later occupied the position of district attorney with credit to himself and his constituents. In 1898 he accepted a position in the attorney general's office and handled some of the most famous cases in the state his ability being so marked that he was promoted to the position of assistant attorney general.

Judge Sturtevant's friends in this county and in the state are highly satisfied with his appointment and are sure that he will make good and that time will demonstrate the clear-sightedness of Governor Gillett in making this appointment. The fact that Governor Gillett had been stormed with petitions for this appointment and that Judge Sturtevant had made no effort at all to secure it but was appointed simply because the governor had observed his work and decided that he was the one man in the state to fill the position makes the appointment a tribute such as it is the fortune of few men to receive.

The following in regard to Judge Sturtevants appointment has been clipped from the San Francisco Chronicle:

"The new appointee had never come out as a candidate for the position and the selection was something of a surprise to the politicians.

"In speaking of the appointment, Governor Gillett said: 'This is a case of the office seeking the man. It is true that a number of applications have been made for the place, but I selected Mr Sturtevant because I know him to be a man well fitted for the position. I have known him for several years, and through a long friendship I have never found him lacking in qualities which I believe are necessary in the make-up of a judge. He is not only a man of honesty and integrity, but he has a superior knowledge of the law. He is also very well acquainted with conditions in San Francisco. I believe he is in every way fitted for the position.'

"Judge Sturtevant will probably be sworn in to morrow. The term to which he has been appointed will be for eighteen months. Before Sturtevant entered the office of the attorney general he served four years as district attorney of Mendocino county.

"Since he has been in the attorney general's office he has charge of nearly all the civil cases connected with the office. He has acted as counsel for the Bank Commission, the Insurance Commission, the Railroad Commission, the Building and Loan Commission, and the State Board of Equlization. He is a graduate of the State University and the Hastings College of Law.

"Judge Sturtevant was highly gratified by the appointment, and though he had no inkling that it was to have been offered to him until yesterday, he accepted immediately. 'I did not seek the place,' he said, 'I did not am all the prouder of having received it. I have known Governor Gillett intimately for more than seven years and have always had a high opinion of him. I am glad that I have been able to earn his esteem to such an extent.'

Good Time in An Auto

Chester Scott made the round trip from Fort Bragg to this city one day last week in fourteen hours. This included a two hour stop in this city. He had four passengers all the time in the car. The distance from here to Fort Bragg is over sixty miles most of which is mountain grade.

VERY SUCCESSFUL MUSICAL RECITAL

No more interesting or successful recital has ever been attended in Ukiah than was given last Saturday night by Miss Williams' class of the Interstate University of music. All her pupils did exceedingly well and showed the careful training given them by their faithful teacher. But of course the sweet girl graduates, Miss Verna Duncan and Miss Carmelita Carothers, were the especial objects of attention, and the enthusiastic applause which greeted them after each number, and the many beautiful floral offerings, showed clearly the high esteem in which both young ladies are held by their many friends. The diplomas were conferred by J. L McNab in his usual characteristic and pleasing manner. The alumni acted as ushers and Mrs. E. B. Gibson and Miss Alice Gibson had charge of the flowers. The affair was voted an entire success.

BOARD SELECTS THE U H S TEACHERS

The board of education has employed the following teachers for the ensuing year: Ukiah—Noel H. Garrison, Miss Isabella Wilson, Miss Florence E Atkinson, Miss Margaret Smith, C. A. Bernhard.

Meodocino high school was allowed $300 for its laboratory and library. Repairs recommended by principal for Mendocino high school ordered and secretary instructed to look after work. Secretary also ordered to investigate cost of curbing well and fencing grounds of Mendocino high school and report to board.

The Ukiah high school term was fixed as follows: Open September 9 and continue fifteen weeks. Then two weeks vacation after which twenty-five weeks school. Principal allowed $300 for use in laboratories and library.

Judge DeHaven In Town

Federal Judge John J DeHaven accompanied by his wife and daughter, S L DeHaven, were registered at the Palace hotel Tuesday. The judge was on his way to Eureka where he will hold court during the coming week.

BRUSH PURCHASES ANOTHER ENGINE

Irving H Brush returned from San Francisco Saturday and reports that he could get no trace of the gas engine that was shipped to the pumping plant. The car in which it was supposed to be shipped was located but contained no engine He therefore canceled the order with the firm and purchased another engine in San Francisco. This is due to arrive in a few days and then the water plant will be put in first class shape.

Contest Closes Saturday August 3, at 6 P. M.

There are only twent-nine days remaining in the vacation contest and this month will be the time of big gains in the total vote of the contestants. Many of the contestants have been accumulating reserve funds of votes and will throw them in this and the next two weeks. New subscribers are counting double votes and the contestants are all making a great endeavor to get in as many as possible. Every $2.50 paid on new subscription or advance subscription will count 500 votes.

This is a chance for our subscribers to help their favorite win one of these trips. The supervisor districts are standing well by their candidates and there have been very few votes cast for candidates in one district by subscribers residing in other districts. This shows that the people are staying by their candidates and desire their favorites to have as large a vote as possible. Of course payments on back subscriptions still count a cent a vote.

Subscribers who are paying up to help these contestants will be well repaid for their trouble when they see the victors after their return. Imagine the pleasures of a trip to a large city especially when all of the expenses are paid. Every subscriber who pays up helps in a measure to defray the expenses of one of the candidates. It is only by the aid of subscribers that such a trip would be possible for the children at the hands of the Press.

It is well known that it costs a newspaper more proportionately to collect its subscription bills than it does any other business man collecting his bills. If a collector is sent out the proportion he receives all goes to him. The idea of the Press has been either to give these commissions back to the subscribers who were prompt in paying in the form of premiums or to offer prizes so that commissions may be turned by the subscribers to the person of their own selection. Thus in these vacation trips while they are being paid for by the Press it is really the subscribers who deserve to share the credit and the thanks of the winners.

We have tried various prizes but in this contest have decided that these trips will be really more beneficial to the winners than anything else that could be offered. A cash prize or any other prize will not last but the joys of a pleasant vacation will remain as long as life lasts. The winners will also derive great value from the trip as they will in addition to having a good time have a chance to observe how things are done and how people live in the larger cities. The impressions gained will be lasting and the minds of the scholars will be broadened by actual knowledge that will make them better citizens of the communites in which they live.

The liberal support accorded the plan of the Press to entertain these school children is a matter of great satisfaction to the Press. It shows that the people approve our efforts and are willing to help out in liberal minded enterprises. It also goes to show, as the Press has always claimed to its advertisers, that we have the most liberal and broadminded list of subscribers it was possible to secure in the county.

Regarding The County's Moneys

County Treasurer Johnson reports that the balance on hand in the treasury last Monday was $118,821.29. The receipts during the month of June were $12,783.50. During the same time the disbursements were $40,694.64. The following fees were turned in during the month by officials: Clerk McCowen, $114; Recorder Holbrook, $305.40; Sheriff Donohoe, $92.15.

Former Resident Electrocuted.

Willis Wager formerly of Lakeport was electrocuted Friday at Watsonville. He was engaged in painting telephone poles and in some manner caught hold of a live wire. The remains were brought to this county for interment. The deceased had relatives at Westport.

HUNTER'S LICENSES HAVE NOW ARRIVED

The first hunters license's arrived last week from the fish commission for the hunters who were afraid that the supply for Clerk McCowen would not arrive in time to open the season properly and so sent their dollar and their application in to the head office. The prospective hunter has to give his full pedigree on the blank including the color of his hair and eyes and sign it before a witness. These blanks can be obtained at the clerks office and Hale now has a full supply of licenses so that there will be no delay.

The licenses are made of thin sheet aluminum and are oval being an inch and a quarter wide by two and a quarter long. A small hole is punched in the left hand corner presumably so the hunter may run a string through it to wear around his neck. It bears the inscription: Hunting license No— State of California, expires June 30, 1908. These licenses are not transferable and must be applied for by the person who intends using it. Further particulars will be furnished by Clerk McCowen.

THE JOKE THAT WAS WORKED BACKWARD

Sheriff Donohoe planned a joke on Undersheriff Smith this week after having himself tried one of the famous Teddy cigars containing a bomb that would make Orchard ashamed of himself. Emmet bought one of the cigars and took it over to the sheriff's office and placed it on Bud's desk after having adorned it with a wrapper of his favorite brand.

Bud was busy and did not notice the cigar or feel inclined to smoke and it was still lying there when Donohoe was called to Pine mountain Monday. Monday afternoon one of the inmates noticed the cigar and threw out a few hints which resulted in Bud presenting it to him in spite of his longing desire for the supposed fragrant weed. He had no sooner lit it than there was an explosion. Bud being innocent thought the jail had been dynamited but soon recovered his presence of mind.

He immediately commenced plotting for even. An unloaded cigar was secured and placed in the same position. When Sheriff Donohoe returned he waited until he was talking to him and then pretended to find the cigar. Announcing that he was going to smoke he lit it and smoked and smoked. Emmet was an interested witness but as the cigar disappeared and no explosion followed it finally dawned on him that he had been jobbed. The cigars were on him.

THE PASSING OF FIVE CENT BEER

Sunday was the last day of the five cent schooner in this city and henceforth the weary and travel stained pedestrian will have to dig for double the former price of a refreshing ice clad glass. In other words the price is now ten cents per. A man who could formerly get rich for fifty cents will now have to produce one plunk or stay poor. The saloon men are now congratulating themselves on the fact that they can make twice the money on half the expense. In celebrating the passing of the beer Saturday and Sunday there were several of the boys who got more of the malt extract than they could carry and one bumped up against Patrollman Miller and bounced back. The patrol wagon had to be summoned to remove him from the scene.

William Clarke was down from Cahto on a business visit last week.

THE CITY FATHERS HOLD A MEETING

The board of city trustees met in regular session Monday night. The full board was present. A long petition was presented asking that John O'Neal be granted a liquor license. There was a large number of signatures and it was a fairly representative petition. The matter was laid on the table to be taken up at the pleasure of the board as under the present license ordinance the petition could not be granted.

An ordinance to amend ordinance 119 was passed fixing the license for restaurants where liquor is sold at $12 50 a quarter.

W H Miller, Mrs W P Thomas and W D L Held were re-appointed as trustees of the public library.

Request of the Ukiah Fire department to appoint Dean Van Voast fire marshal was laid over.

Resignation of Louis Hofman as chief of the fire department accepted and W. H. Ives appointed to fill the vacancy.

Transfer of $25.70 form the electric fund ordered to the electric light bond fund. $111.60 ordered transferred from unapportioned fund to the sewer bond fund. Transfer of $300 from the unapportioned fund to the salary fund.

M. B. Gibson was named as one of the experts to examine the city books and chairman of the board instructed to select some one to assist him.

Committee on sidewalks of J. L. McNab was granted until next Monday to inspect and report on same.

Adjournment was then taken until Monday night.

Is Building A Garage

Albert Brunner is building a garage on the school street front of his warehouse lot. The building will be of brick and will be a handsome ornament to the business portion of the city. It will be large enough to accommodate several of the largest touring cars. He will probably conduct the garage in connection with his hardware store. The number of automobiles passing through this city with the ones that are owned here make a garage a necessity.

The Department Of Justice

Geo Frye run afoul of Patrollman Miller Saturday and found out he had made a mistake. He plead guilty to being disorderly and paid a fine of $10. George Howell got in an altercation at Frost & Redwine's Sunday and some one hit him over the head with a crib board. He was arrested for being drunk and disorderly and plead not guilty before Recorder Wilson and demanded a jury trial. His trial was set for the 17th of this month.

Sold Liquor To Indians

Wm. Osborne was one who yielded to the numerous solicitation of some of the Indians in Lakeport last week to furnish them with liquor and was arrested by Marshal Hammack in the act. Brought to trial Monday he demanded a jury and they promptly found him guilty of the misdemeanor. Justice Brupton sentenced the prisoner to 180 days or $180, and he is now serving his time out in the county jail, says the Clear Lake Press.

Grocery Store Changes Hands

Dan Gibson & Frank Grant took charge of Lucas Bros grocery store Monday morning. They report business good. Mr Grant has been in business in Hopland for a number of years where he is well and favorably known. Mr Gibson has been a life long resident of this city and is too well known to our readers to need further introduction.

Miss Priscilla White closed the Largo school last Friday and returned to her home in this city that the Englishman was to be the real victim, and this enforced voyage was merely a convenient method of getting himself out of the way.

After lunch a dismal drizzle set in that presently increased to a steady downpour, which drove Lermontoff to his cabin, and, that room being unprovided with either window or electric light, the prince struck a match to one of the candles newly placed on the washstand. He pushed the electric button summoning the steward and, giving him some money, asked if there was such a thing as a piece of stone on board, carried as ballast or for any other purpose. The steward said he would inquire and finally returned with a sharpening stone used for the knives in the galley. Bolting his door, Lermontoff began an experiment and at once forgot he was a prisoner. He filled the wash basin with water and, opening one of the glass stoppered bottles, took out with the point of his knife a most minute portion of the substance within, which he dissolved in the water with no apparent effect. Standing the whetstone up on end, he filled the glass syringe and directed a fine, vaporous spray against the stone. It dissolved before his eyes as a sand castle on the shore dissolves at the touch of an incoming tide.

"By St. Peter of Russia," he cried, "I've got it at last! I must write to Katherine about this."

Summoning the steward again to take away this fluid and bring him another pailful of fresh water, Lermontoff endeavored to extract some information from the deferential young man.

"Have you ever been in Stockholm?"

"No, excellency."

"Or in any of the German ports?"

"No, excellency."

"Do you know where we are making for now?"

"No, excellency."

"Nor when we shall reach our destination?"

"No, excellency."

"You have some prisoners aboard?"

"Three drunken sailors, excellency."

"Yes, that's what the captain said. But if it meant death for a sailor to be drunk the commerce of the world would speedily stop."

"This is a government steamer, excellency, and if a sailor here disobeys orders he is guilty of mutiny. On a merchant vessel they would merely put him in irons."

"I see. Now, do you want to earn a few gold pieces?"

"Excellency has been very generous to me already," was the noncommittal reply of the steward, whose eyes nevertheless twinkled at the mention of gold.

"Well, here's enough to make a jingle in your pocket, and here are two letters which you are to try to get delivered when you return to St. Petersburg."

"Yes, excellency."

"You will do your best?"

"Yes, excellency."

"Well, if you succeed I'll make your fortune when I'm released."

"Thank you, excellency."

That night at dinner the captain opened a bottle of vodka and conversed genially on many topics without touching upon the particular subject of liberty. He partook sparingly of the stimulant, and, to Lermontoff's disappointment, it did not in the least loosen his tongue, and thus, still ignorant of his fate, the prince turned in for the second night aboard the steamer.

When he awoke next morning he found the engines had stopped and, as the vessel was motionless, surmised it had reached harbor. He heard the intermittent chuck-chuck of a pony engine and the screech of an imperfectly oiled crane and guessed that cargo was being put ashore.

"Now," he said to himself, "if my former sentinel is at the door they are going to take me to prison. If he is absent, I am to be set free."

He jumped up, threw back the bolt, opened the door. There was no one there. In a very few minutes he was on deck and found that the steamer was lying in the lee of a huge rock, which reminded him of Mont St. Michel in Normandy, except that it was about half again as high and three times as long and that there were no buildings of any kind upon it, nor, indeed, the least sign of human habitation.

The morning was fine. In the east the sun had just risen and was flooding the grim rock with a rosy light. Except this rock no trace of land was visible as far as the eye could see. Alongside the steamer was moored a sailing boat with two masts, but provided also with thole pins and sweeps for rowing. The sails were furled, and she had evidently been brought to the steamer's side by means of the oars. Into this craft the crane was lowering boxes, bags and whatnot, which three or four men were stowing away. The mate was superintending this transshipment, and the captain, standing with his back against the deckhouse, was handing one by one certain papers, which Lermontoff took to be bills of lading, to a young man who signed in a book for each he received. When this transaction was completed, the young man saluted the captain and descended over the ship's side of the sailboat.

"Good morning, captain. At anchor, I see," said Lermontoff.

"No, not at anchor. Merely lying here. The sea is too deep and affords no anchorage at this point."

"Where are all these goods going?"

The captain nodded his head at the rock, and Lermontoff gazed at it again, running his eyes from top to bottom without seeing any vestige of civilization.

"Then you lie to the lee of this rock, and the small boat takes the supplies ashore?"

"Exactly," said the captain.

"The settlement, I take it, is on the other side. What is it—a lighthouse?"

"There's no lighthouse," said the captain.

"Sort of coastguard, then?"

"Yes, in a way. They keep a lookout. And now, highness, I see your overcoat is on your back. Have you left anything in your room?"

"Hyvasti, your highness."

The prince laughed.

"No, captain; I forgot to bring a portmanteau with me."

"Then I must say farewell to you here."

"What, you are not going to maroon me on this pebble in the ocean?"

"You will be well taken care of, highness."

"What place is this?"

"It is called the Trogzmondoff, highness, and the water surrounding you is the Baltic."

"Is it Russian territory?"

"Very, very Russian," returned the captain, drawing a deep breath. "This way, if your highness pleases. There is a rope ladder, which is sometimes a little unsteady for a landsman, so be careful."

"Oh, I'm accustomed to rope ladders. Hyvasti, captain."

"Hyvasti, your highness."

And with this mutual goodby in Finnish the prince went down the swaying ladder.

A Stetson Story.

The late John Stetson, famous in his day as a theatrical manager, was having a yacht built, and a friend, meeting him on the street, asked him what he was going to name the boat. "I haven't decided yet," replied John, "but it will be some name commencing with S, probably either Psyche or Cinch."

A Dog Habit.

Have you ever thought why it is that a dog turns around and around when he jumps up on his cushion or starts to settle himself anywhere for a nap? Now that you are reminded you can recall that you have seen a dog do it many times, can't you? This habit is about all that is left to our tame little doggies of the days long ago, when they were a race of wild animals and lived in the woods. Their beds then were matted grass and leaves, and it was to trample enough grass and properly arrange the leaves that the dog always trod around a narrow circle before he would lie down. The dog of today keeps up the same old habit, although there is no longer any need for it, and of course the animal has no notion why he does it.
